City expands 2-hour free downtown parking in limited areas

The City of London has expanded its 2-hour free downtown parking program, offering downtown shoppers and merchants greater opportunity to access the area while construction at Dundas and Wellington Streets is taking place.

Two hours of free parking is now available seven days a week, at downtown meters during their posted hours of operation.

The area of the 2-hour free meter parking has been expanded to include the area bounded by:

York Street to the south
Queens Ave. to the north
Ridout Street to the west, and
Waterloo Street to the east
